

I am concerned about the continued disregard that all networks have for the content of their programming. The Janet Jackson event on Sunday was a predictable outgrowth from the trend that public television and radio have displayed in the past several years. That is to say, the FCC seems to allow more and more inappropriate content to flood the airways. The results are equally predicatable. More crime and a growing disregard for common decency and morality. The people of the United States need the FCC to help put a stop to the filth and stop facilitating it.

Thank you for yours service to our country.
